

Title: Who gained from the Cuban Missile Crisis in 1962?

Criterion A: 1 mark

There is no question stated. There is little explanation of the relevance of the sources, but really no analysis of either one – just some quite personal comments. This section is weak.

Criterion B: 3 marks

The investigation is a narrative not very well focused “story” about Cuba in the 20th century. Most of the short text gives some information about the situation in 1962, but the way it’s presented is poor. There is an attempt to organize the narrative text (chronologically with both a background and a conclusion) but the different parts of the text could be better structured. Generalizations and poorly substantiated assertions describe the main text fairly well – and there are no references. This section is also weak.

Criterion C: 0 marks

The work does not reach a standard for any marks...
